530

Nothing of decisive character occurred in the Persian War until 530.

Belisarius, the very young officer in command of the forces on the frontier, had previously only been able to stand on guard; but in 530 he routed a much larger Persian force in what resolved itself into a great cavalry engagement, by tactics which recall the battle of Marathon, where there was no cavalry and the tactics of Hannibal at Cannae.

The Vandals in Africa, even when Genseric's power was at its height, had never been more than an armed garrison in the midst of a wide & intensely hostile country. Since Genseric's death their enemies had been gathering strength, though they still held their domination by sheer brute force, and the usurper Gelimer, who seized the Crown in 530 had replied with singular insolence to the protest of Justinian. There was warrant enough for dramatic coloring but in 532 the Nika riots (insurrection) seized the attention. The rebellion was utterly crushed and Nika was beheaded with his brother.

Problems addressed by Bishop Caesarius of Arles were:

- 1) Semi-Pelagianism
- 2) ecclesiastical jurisdiction and property
- 3) Support and Education of the clergy

were discussed at Councils 506 AD - 533 AD

Caesarius introduced many church reforms and founded several monasteries.

The Byzantine emperor Justinian caused a strong defensive wall to be built around the little chapel at the mountain of Moss

It now bears the name of St Catherine's Monastery today (Catherine - mother of Constantine - Caused it to be built (327 AD))

Belisarius entered Rome and although opposed by the Ostrogoths he became their king, held the city for his master emperor Justinian, but neither he nor his successors subdued the Goths

After Theodoric's death, at the beginning of the 3rd decade of the 6th century, along a line that was at least 1000 mi long & that extended from central Germany to the TYRRHENIAN Sea, the Frankish kings went on the offensive, simultaneously threatening the Visigoths on their southern flank.

530

The first Gepidic attempt - probably with Hunnic support - to regain what they had lost took place in 530 and was thwarted by a Gothic army led by the later king VITIGIS. At its outbreak of the Byzantine - Gothic war, however, Ravenna withdrew also from Sirmium.

530

At this moment Justinian was busy with the Persian War.

The attempt by the Gepids and Heruli to take the Gothic Pannonia SIRMIEDSIS failed. VITIGIS, the future king, drove back the attackers who were led by the old Bonded

System of Golden numbers was introduced organized so though they had been adopted by Council of Nicea in 325.
Rule:

Divide yr by 19. Add 1 to the Remainder. If result is zero Golden # is 19

This system of Golden numbers was eventually rejected because the astronomical Full Moon could differ by as much as 2 days from the date the Golden rule indicated

Lilius used EPACT indicating age of Moon on 1st day of yr. - Could then Count
